Course Description

The UCI Health Comprehensive Stroke and Neurocritical Care Symposium offers an update on the latest advances in stroke care and research. Improving stroke patient outcomes requires a multifaceted approach that includes pre-hospital, acute care, ICU management and rehabilitation care, as well as reintegration into the community. This conference is designed to improve the knowledge and performance of healthcare providers for patients with stroke and cerebrovascular disease.

Target Audience

The conference is targeted for neurologists, primary care physicians, cardiologists, vascular surgeons, neurosurgeons, psychologists, registered nurses, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, pharmacists, physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, social workers, case managers, EMS personnel and other healthcare providers directly involved with delivery of care to persons with stroke and cerebrovascular disease. Resolutions will be made prior to the activity in writing via handout materials, insert or syllabus.

Learning Objectives

After completing the learning activity, the participant should be able to:

- Identify best practice in acute treatment for stroke
- Discuss the role of multidisciplinary care in stroke
- Examine the latest advances in surgical and endovascular intervention and ICU management of the hemorrhagic and ischemic stroke patient
- Discuss the innovations in stroke care
